Missolonghi.—A history of the siege of Missolonghi has been published at Paris, by M. Auguste Fabre, a French writer of considerable celebrity. It contains a number of most interesting details with respect to that memorable event. The bravery and self-devotion of the unfortunate Greeks are painted with a very masterly pencil. It is well known, that after having been disappointed in all their hopes of aid, feeling their ramparts crumbling under their feet, seeing their fathers, their wives, and their children, perishing by famine, the garrison sent a communication to the only corps that was able to give them any succour, that of Kairaskaki, requesting it to attack the rear of the enemy on a certain day, and to announce its arrival by a general discharge of musketry, at which moment the garrison would make a sortie, and endeavor to cut their way through the besieging army. On the appointed day, the population of Missolonghi was assembled. There remained three thousand soldiers (including those who, although sick or wounded, were capable of marching with the assistance of their comrades,) a thousand artificers or other men unused to fighting, and about five thousand women and children. The Grecian women, who fancied themselves strong enough to brave the fatigue and danger of the sortie, dressed themselves in men's clothes, in order that if they were unable to escape the enemy, they might be mistaken for soldiers, and put to death instantly. Many of them hung round their necks, and round the necks of their children, as a protecting talisman, the revered relics of their ancestors; and wore concealed daggers, with which either to strike the enemy, or secure their not being taken alive. Those whose weakness forbade them to follow the troops, joined the desperately wounded, the sick, the aged, and the infants, and resolved to bury themselves in the ruins of the town. It was a terrible moment.

Almost all the families of Missolonghi were divided into two parts; those who remained in expectation of death, and those who were on the point of rushing forth to vengeance and to new dangers.—The hardiest warriors were subdued to tears; and the bravest hearts quailed at the approaching separation. All these preparations were, however, rendered abortive by the infamous treachery of a Burglarian soldier, who had deserted to Ibrahim, and disclosed the whole plan. The Turks suddenly attacked the town, and bathed themselves in Christian blood. The scene that followed was hideous. "But one voice was heard among the despairing women," says M. Fabre: "'To the sea! to the sea!' Many precipitated themselves into the wells, into which they first threw their children. But the wells at length became full, and it was a long way from the ramparts to that part of the harbour which was sufficiently deep for the purpose of death. The conquerors, anxious for slaves, followed close on their victims. Several women, and even several children, had the address and the good fortune to free themselves by throwing themselves on the naked swords of the Arabs; others plunged into the flames of the burning houses; twelve hundred, who could discover no way of destroying themselves, fell into the hands of the enemy.

"The attention of the conquerors was soon drawn to the powder magazine. The size and the solidity of the building induced them to believe that the wealth of the inhabitants had been there deposited. It contained, however, only women and children, and Capsalis (one of the primates of the town, who, having obstinately refused to accompany the garrison in their projected sortie, conducted to the powder magazine a crowd of women and children, saying, 'come, and be still; I will myself set fire to it'.) They wept not; they had no parting to apprehend; the grave was about to unite them for ever. The mothers tranquilly pressed their infants to their breasts, relying on Capsalis. In the meanwhile, the enemy crowded round their asylum; some attempted to break open the doors; some to enter by the windows; some climbed to the roof, and endeavoured to demolish it. At length, Capsalis perceiving that a vast number had assembled, uttered a brief prayer, familiar to the Greeks—'Lord remember me!' and applied the match. The explosion was so violent, that the neighbouring houses were thrown down, large chasms were produced in the earth, and the sea, moved from its bed, inundated one part of the town. Two thousand barbarians were blown up with Capsalis." Such was the catastrophe of this terrible drama!

Every man's natural weight of afflictions is still made more heavy by the envy, malice, treachery, or injustice of his neighbor.

John Dunn Hunter.—The Natchitoches Courier gives an account of the death of this individual, rendered conspicuous as the author of "Hunter's Narrative," published a few years ago, in England.—His book has been the theme of abundant criticism, both in newspapers and periodicals. He has been pronounced an imposter, and the charge appears to have been well supported, although the Natchitoches paper is incredulous on that point. It appears by the account, that Hunter was concerned in, if not the prime mover of the late unfortunate attempt to revolutionize Texas. After some of the revolutionists had seceded from the attempt, or had been "seduced from their faith;" and endeavouring in vain to rouse the Indians to join in the revolt, Hunter sets out for Nacogdoches to share the fate of his American friends there, accompanied by two Indians. He stopped at a creek to let his horse drink, and while thus unguarded in his security, one of his savage companions shot him with a rifle. He had just previously to the revolution, been to the city of Mexico to procure a grant of lands in Texas. The government promised to comply with his request, but on his return the promise was not complied with, which appears to have been the chief cause of revolt. The editor of the Courier says, that Hunter was ignorant that he had been pronounced an imposter.

A new personation of Othello.—A late London paper gives the following humorous account of a ludicrous representation of Othello on the Drury Lane Boards, by the son of a British Admiral. Verily he stood much in need of Hamlet's advice to the players.

"A very amusing gentleman disported himself here on Monday evening, in the character of Othello, which he performed in a manner truly original; such an extraordinary exhibition not having taken place, we can answer for it, since the days of father Thespis. The unlucky Moor was performed literally like a mouthing maniac; and the play, from his first scene to the conclusion, proceeded amidst shouts of laughter and derision. The name of this hero is Smith, and he is said to be the son of a British Admiral. The sum which he paid the lessee, for liberty to enact the Moor, was 150*l.*, according to the terms of his engagement with Mr. Price.—They were 100*l.* for permission to play, and if the receipts, including that sum, did not amount to 300*l.* the debutant was to make good the deficiency. The mother of the young Histrio was in the boxes, and was very vehement in the plaudits she bestowed upon her son."

A Dangerous Adventure.—Not long since, a reverend clergyman in Vermont, being apprehensive that the accumulated weight of snow upon the roof of his barn might do some damage, was resolved to prevent it by seasonably shovelling it off. He therefore ascended it, having first, for fear the snow might all slide off at once, and himself with it, fastened to his waist one end of a rope, and given the other to his wife. He went to work, but fearing still for his safety, "my dear," said he, "tie the rope around your waist:" no sooner had she done this, than off went the snow, poor minister and all, and up went his wife. Thus on one side of the barn the astounded and confounded clergyman hung, but on the other side hung his wife, high and dry, in majesty sublime, dingling and dangling at the end of the rope. At that moment, however, a gentleman, luckily passing by, delivered them from their perilous situation.—Vermont Patriot.

Duelling.—Wilkes, on the receipt of a challenge from Horne Tooke, sent the following reply:—"Sir, I do not think it my business to cut the throat of every desperado that may be tired of his life, but as I am High Sheriff for the city of London, it may happen that I may shortly have an opportunity of attending you in my official capacity, in which case I will answer for it, that you shall have no ground to complain of my endeavors to serve you."

In the year 1763, the following occurred at Nismes, in Languedoc: A gardener's ass having brought some goods to market, and being unloaded, while the master was busily engaged, went into the Church, which was hard by the stand, and, meeting with the basin of holy water, took a hearty draught of it; but the poor beast being unfortunately detected and seized in the act, was tried by a formal process for sacrilege. Counsel, indeed, was allowed the ass, but the evidence being clear, judgment was pronounced against the grave animal, that he should be first hanged, and then burnt; the gardener being, at the same time, condemned to pay all the expenses of the process.

English paper.

Half the misery of human life might be extinguished, would men alleviate the general curse they lie under, by mutual offices of compassion, benevolence, and humanity. There is nothing, therefore, which we ought more to encourage in ourselves and others, than that disposition of mind which in our language goes under the title of good nature.—Spectator.

It is no less common to see men of sense commence coxcombs, than beautiful women become immodest. When this happens in either, the favor we are naturally inclined to give to the good qualities they have from nature, should abate in proportion.—Ib.

Mail Robbery.—The boot of the mail stage was cut open, on its passage between Trenton and Kingston, N. J. on Wednesday night. Unluckily for the robbers—or, as Fallstaff more prettily calls them, "minions of the moon"—they mistook, in the hurry of operations, the bag of newspapers for the letter bag; and decamped with a load, not of respectable bank bills, payable to bearer, but of editorial speculations on the Signs of the Times, and other equally important matters. These, though very good in their way, were not the things desired.

A new Species of fraud.—A man was lately summoned before a Magistrate in London, charged with a species of fraud hitherto unknown—viz. selling his wife to another man for ten guineas, and then passing another man's wife on the purchaser instead of his own.

Lorenzo Dow arrived at Tuscumbia, Alabama, on the 20th ultimo, and lost no time in giving notice that he would preach the following day, that he had certain religious tracts for sale, and also, an extensive stock of Dow's family medicine.

From the Raleigh Register.

Number and extent of Marle beds.—The number and extent of these beds in the low country will not be ascertained till their value shall be determined by a few successful experiments. Men will then begin to search their plantations, and the treasures now lying in concealment will be brought to light. It is believed, that in the neighborhood of the Cape Fear they will be found to be numerous.—From Robeson's plantation downwards they are apparently abundant for a few miles. They occur on Purdie's plantation. Major Owen has two large beds on his land. There is also a bed on Randall's plantation. The quantity observed on the bed of the river at Elizabeth, was a small thin stratum, between two beds of clay, having pieces of carbonized wood associated with it. The largest repository of marine shells observed, was at Walker's Bluff. The bank is there not less than sixty feet high, and for a considerable distance, (at least a quarter of a mile,) it presents thick beds of shells—in some places intermixed with a quantity of clay and sand, and in others quite free from such intermixture. What gives particular value to this bed, is its proximity to the river, which is such as to permit the Marle to be thrown into boats, and carried up and down the river, with but trifling labour and expense. Below this Bluff, the Professor had leisure to ascertain the locality of but a few other beds, but he believes they will be found numerous and extensive. Back from the River, if the Marle exists, it does not appear to rise to the surface. Several circumstances induce a belief that it does exist, and that the digging of wells will bring it to light, from time to time, by piercing the bed of clay and sand by which it is covered. Along the River, it is not on the surface of the ground that the Marle is seen, but on the sides of gullies and deep branches, and on the faces of cliffs, where the upper stratum has been removed. It has therefore been sometimes met with in digging wells, in places remote from each other, and in places where the surface presented no indications of the nature of the strata below. Thus at the natural well in Duplin, a cylinder of earth about 90 feet in diameter, has sunk down in the midst of a tract of dry sandy woods, formed a gulf 40 or 50 feet in depth, and exhibited first a bed of shell, nearly five feet in depth, and beneath this a bed of sandy Marle of unknown thickness. What nature has done in this instance, the art of man will do in others. On the waters of Drowning creek, the Marle beds are probably deeper covered; as after examining some of the most promising bluffs upon its banks, and enquiring of persons who were well acquainted with the stream, the Professor could neither see nor hear of any Shell Marle upon it. [To be continued.]

Wilmington, (N. C.) May 16.

We have experienced some days of boisterous weather lately. It began on the night of the 8th instant, blowing furiously. On the 9th the wind was high. On the 10th, the wind continued high and was accompanied with rain. We are informed, that on that day, many persons suffered by a gust which took its rise, somewhere on the west side of the North West River, and held its course to Topsail Sound. In its progress, it tore up large trees. At the plantation of Parker Quince, Esq. lately Doctor F. J. Hill's, it unroofed the machine and the winnowing house and utterly demolished the barn.

At the Hermitage, the seat of G. W. Burgwin, Esq. the damage was considerable and the ravage extensive. The barn was blown down—the roofs of nearly all the negro houses were blown off, and other buildings much injured. The fences of the garden were destroyed; and the rows of trees, which for many years embellished the garden, were levelled to the ground. This beautiful villa, which presented the only relics of the taste and opulence of former times, on Cape Fear, is despoiled of many of its decorations and is greatly defaced. At Topsail Sound, the dwelling house and out houses of Mr. Loftin, were shattered to pieces. One of the sills of a negro house, was borne by the wind to the distance of 50 yards. It is a providential circumstance, that in a gust so violent, and in which many lives were endangered, none were lost.—Recorder.

POTTER'S
Vegetable Catholicon.

THE proprietor of this invaluable medicine, feels authorized by its increasing reputation, to recommend it as superior to all other popular remedies, for the cure of King's Evil or Scrofula, Necrosis or diseased bones, Syphilis in every stage, Mercurial disease, Rheumatism, Liver complaints, and Ulcers of every description.

The Catholicon has also been used with great success in every variety of Cutaneous disease, blotches on the face, pimples and tetter in particular: White Swellings, Gout, Jaundice and Bilious diseases generally, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, complaints of the Stomach, and general debility. It is a certain purifier of the blood and humours, and has been found an efficacious remedy in purifying the blood of children after vaccination, and should be invariably used as a general alternative both for children and adults, being agreeable to the most delicate palate; and a grateful cordial to the stomach. This is the first discovery of a medicine taken into the stomach, that has had the long desired effect, of curing the most obstinate and distressing external diseases. The use of nutritious food, and the ordinary avocations of business are not interrupted by the Catholicon; and its properties having the power of restoring both flesh and bone, and of renovating and invigorating every part of the system during the process of exterminating disease, is without a parallel.

The following certificates will, it is presumed, satisfy the most incredulous, of the pre-eminent virtues of the Catholicon.

CERTIFICATES.

CASE. G—— S—— was of a scrofulous habit; at the age of three years his parents perceived an ulceration of the head, proceeding, it is supposed, from vaccination. It was at first confined to a small compass, but from the continual discharge, it was soon communicated to the whole scalp, which presented a horrible appearance, being almost one entire scab: soon after this a discharge commenced from his ears, which became very offensive. Blisters, washes, ointments, &c. were rigorously resorted to, but in vain. After remaining in this situation for more than six months, the Vegetable Catholicon was recommended and its use immediately commenced. It quickly displayed its acknowledged powers over the disease, by first increasing the discharge, but which soon after ceased, the complaint being completely eradicated, and the child restored to health.

For information as to the accuracy of this case, the father of the child can be referred to, on application to W. W. POTTER.

N. B. The above case of Tinea Capitas, or ulcerated sore head, should be a warning to parents to guard against the evil effects which too often arise from neglecting to use some purifier of the blood, after the vaccination of their children. The Catholicon is offered as a suitable remedy in these cases, and should be invariably used.

Philadelphia, Feb. 23d, 1827.

Philadelphia, May 28, 1824.

Sir—I am now, thanks to your medicine, a hearty man. For nearly six years I have been a martyr to a disease, whose ravages threatened, if not soon stopped, to put a period to my existence. Having had no regular medical advice from the commencement, my complaint at last got to such a height that I could not swallow without great pain and difficulty. Tumors formed in different parts of my body, and I began to think my situation almost desperate. The five bottles of the Catholicon which I have taken have completely cured me, and I am now as well as I could wish to be. With my thanks, I am your obliged humble servant, &c. GEORGE KANE.

City of Philadelphia, ss.

George Kane, of the district of Southwark, personally appeared, and, being duly sworn, doth declare and say, that the above statement is, in all respects, correct and true, and that the signature to it is in the hand writing of this deponent.

JOHN BINNS, Alderman.

Philadelphia, May 28, 1824.

CASE.—Samuel Rain, a stout, full grown lad, of 13 years of age, of a healthy and robust habit of body, while swimming in the Delaware, some time in the month of June, 1821, struck his shin bone a little below the knee, against a boat—no pain or unpleasant consequences resulted therefrom for the space of a week, when considerable inflammation and swelling ensued. Dr. S. a respectable physician of the neighbourhood of Penn's neck, Salem county, New Jersey, where the boy resided, was called, and continued his attentions for four years, during which time it grew worse, until his uncle was seriously alarmed, being of opinion that the loss of his leg was the only means of saving his life. On the third day of August, 1824, he was put on a course of Potter's Vegetable Catholicon, and by its sole use is now completely restored. W. W. POTTER.

Attest—SAMUEL RAIN.

Certificate.—Some time in August, 1824, I was desired by W. W. Potter, to visit and examine the above lad, Samuel Rain—the disease he was afflicted with is termed Necrosis, and a more severe case of it I have never seen—considerable portion of the whole diameter of the tibia, the main or shin bone of the leg, had exfoliated and come out—the wound measuring at the time seven inches in length, extending from a little below the knee to near the ancle, two inches and a half in width, and two inches and a quarter in depth, the flesh being retroverted along the edges to the height of one inch and a half—he was much emaciated, had hectic fever, night sweats; and was rapidly verging to the grave. In this state he was put on the Vegetable Catholicon, which, in the course of three weeks, removed all the symptoms of hectic, and in the beginning of April, 1825, after using ten bottles of the medicine, he was discharged, cured. I have this day examined the limb, it is as sound as it was previous to the accident—a large quantity of healthy boney matter filled up the vacuum left by the exfoliated tibia, and the limb is as firm and sound, and as useful as it could possibly be, had the accident never happened.

HENRY M'MURTRIE, M. D.

Philadelphia, May 16th, 1826.

I do hereby certify, that twelve years ago, 3 days after being confined, both my legs began to swell, constituting the disease called Milk Leg. About 8 months after they commenced swelling they ulcerated; and in this deplorable state I continued till about one year since, when I began to use Potter's Vegetable Catholicon. By its sole use I am now perfectly well; the swelling is gone, the ulcers have healed, and my limbs are as sound and healthy as ever. MARGARET HOFFMAN.

Philadelphia, May 30, 1826.

This is to certify that my daughter, Elizabeth Binder, aged sixteen years, laboured for twenty-two months under a severe ulceration of the tongue and throat, which proceeded to such an extent as to eat away a third part of her tongue, and nearly to destroy her palate; and render her speech unintelligible. In this state medical advice was resorted to, and every remedy that was suggested, tried, but in vain; when, hearing of Mr. Potter's Vegetable Catholicon, was induced to try that: two bottles have effectually cured her, and she is now perfectly well.

ELIZABETH BINDER.

Philadelphia, May 20, 1826.

This is to certify, that my son, John Howorth, aged fourteen years, has been afflicted for eight years with the King's Evil—the best medical advice was had, every remedy was tried, but without success, until Mr. Potter's Vegetable Catholicon was had recourse to, which has effectually cured him. The tumours are dispersed, and his general health is better than it has been for many years past.

This I give unsolicited by Mr. Potter, and from a sincere desire of benefiting others who may be similarly situated. GEORGE HOWORTH.

Justice of the Peace, Philadelphia County.

Philadelphia, June 20, 1826.

This is to certify, that I have been severely afflicted with the Rheumatism for the last fifteen years, and so bad that I was obliged to use crutches, or help, to enable me to move about. I tried every possible means of receiving relief from this deplorable situation, having used two bottles of Swaim's Genuine Panacea without effect, when, about a year since, I applied to Mr. W. W. Potter for a supply of his Vegetable Catholicon, and from the use of two bottles, it has effected a cure, and, since I have stopped taking the medicine, have never enjoyed better health. DOROTHY BENDER.

Philadelphia, June 23, 1826.

This is to certify, that I laboured under a very severe Ulcerated sore throat and mouth, for upwards of a year, and so desperate that it prevented my eating any thing of a hard substance. I took three bottles of Swaim's Genuine Panacea without any effect. In this state, hearing of Potter's Vegetable Catholicon, I had recourse to it, and by the use of three bottles have been effectually cured. It has been upwards of eighteen months since I ceased taking the medicine, and there is no appearance of a return.

THOMAS TOMKINS.
Opposite Washington Square.

Philadelphia, April 1, 1826

This is to certify that I have been labouring for eight years, under a dreadful disease that occasioned more than 100 inveterate Ulcers on my neck and body, and in my throat. In this state I remained upwards of one year under the care of a highly respectable well known medical gentleman, taking every medicine that he ordered me, but without any effect, and was finally abandoned by him as incurable. My frame had become much emaciated, from the long and severe pains I endured, and my health was destroyed. In this despairing situation, Mr. W. W. Potter very generously offered me his "Vegetable Catholicon," which I immediately commenced using, and to my great surprise, its powers soon became visible, by healing up the ulcers, removing my pains, and restoring my appetite in a few weeks—and I say with confidence that the Catholicon alone has saved my life. WM. A. HAMILTON.

I saw the above case at the time he entered on the use of Mr. Potter's Catholicon, and can testify that it was a very severe and seemingly hopeless one—I have seen the same person within a few days, and found him perfectly restored to health,

H. M'MURTRIE, M. D.

April 9th, 1826.

Philadelphia, July 26th, 1826.

I have laboured under a very severe case of Tetter for the last five years, and in the course of that time was attended by two very respectable physicians of this city, who prescribed and recommended every popular remedy which they thought would prove of benefit, without success. I was blistered 9 times on the face, and a course of mercury was pursued ineffectually. At this time my situation became quite desperate, and remaining for some time in this state, I was advised by my friends to try Potter's Vegetable Catholicon, in which they had great confidence, and finally consented to give it a trial. After using five bottles, the disease began to show itself more desperate than ever, which caused me to think I should never get freed from this desponding condition; but being urged by Mr. Potter to take more, (fully convincing me that his medicine would have the desired effect) I followed his advice, thank God, and from the use of nine bottles it effectually performed a cure. I am now perfectly well, my system having undergone a complete revolution.

JAMES PIPER.

This is to certify, that I have seen the above case, and believe it to be true and correct.

WM. T. CARTER.

Philadelphia, August 2, 1826.

This is to certify, that I was afflicted with a disease of the Liver for seven years, which produced a loss of appetite, and consequent emaciation. During this period I received the advice, and followed the prescriptions of Dr. H. and other physicians, without obtaining any relief. About twenty months past, I applied to Mr. W. W. Potter, who advising a course of the Catholicon, I commenced taking it. Six bottles have effectually cured me, my appetite has returned, my pains are gone, and I now enjoy a state of the most perfect health.

MARTHA M. M'CURDY.
No. 76, Chesnut street.

Philadelphia, August 3, 1826.

From the spring of 1822, until this summer, I was afflicted with Scrofula—every gland in my neck was affected by the rising of hard tumours, which broke and left deep ragged ulcers. I was under the care of three eminent practitioners at different times, who continued to prescribe for me for about nine months, when my leg near the shin began to swell, which soon ulcerated—and a large ulcer also arose on my body; from the former proceeded a thick and offensive matter. I continued much in this state (my malady rather increasing,) for some months, and finding my physician's advice useless, I discharged them, and resorted to the use of Swaim's Genuine Panacea which I persisted in to the extent of Nine Bottles, but without the slightest relief. Under these very unfavourable circumstances I commenced using Potter's Vegetable Catholicon, which soon manifested its influence over the disease; the tumour on my body now broke and began to discharge, and soon after all the ulcers began to heal very fast—in a few weeks more to my great astonishment, the ulcers were entirely healed—the pains which I had been subject to, were removed—and my appetite restored—and in fact my bodily health is very much improved from the exclusive use of Mr. Potter's Valuable Catholicon.

MANUEL MORRIS.

Philadelphia, September 26, 1826.

Mr. W. W. POTTER,

Sir—I hereby give you a statement of my case, and you are at liberty to use it in any manner you may think proper.

About four years ago I became afflicted with a complicated case of Scrofula and White Swelling—during this period I placed myself under the care of upwards of eighteen respectable physicians in Boston, Pittsburg, Albany and this place, but their prescriptions were in vain. My arm became useless, the elbow joint being very much enlarged, and so covered with ulcers, that my physician fearing a mortification would take place, advised me to submit to amputation, but this I rejected. On my back there was an ulcer as large as the palm of my hand, which became so painful that I despaired of ever being restored to health, or even getting relief. Having seen a similar case to my own which was cured by your valuable Catholicon, as the last resort I applied for it, and the happy result is, from its use for about three months, I am perfectly cured.

JOHN HEALY.

N. B. As I am about leaving the city, for information as to the accuracy of my case, several gentlemen of high respectability may be referred to Philadelphia, May 28, 1824.

Sir—In consequence of imprudent exposure four years ago, I had the misfortune to become afflicted with a disease, the painful results of which induced me to apply in succession to several respectable physicians of this city, from whom, however, I received either no relief, or from whose remedies I received another complaint quite as distressing as the former. My whole system became affected. I could get no rest at night on account of the violent pain that I felt in every part of my body; the weakness and emaciation of which was such that I could scarcely walk. In this state I fortunately heard of your Vegetable Catholicon—four bottles of which has completely restored me. I have now no pain, my appetite is good, and my strength restored. With many thanks for the relief your medicine has given me, I am, your obliged friend, &c.

From the Darien (Geo.) Gazette, Nov. 1.

A most extraordinary cure effected by Potter's Catholicon.—Captain Donnelly, keeper of the light on Sapelo and master pilot for Doboy Bar, authorizes us to make known to the public the following fact of a recent date.

"About a month ago, I bought three bottles of Potter's Catholicon, for the purpose of testing its virtues upon Mr. Peter M'Culloch, pilot of Doboy Bar, who had been for several years confined to his bed and crutches in consequence of diseased limbs, and ulcerated feet, the soles of his feet were in that shocking state, that the bones were perceptible both to the sight and touch. Mr. M'Culloch, after the use of three bottles of the Catholicon, laid aside his crutches, and was this day in town attending to his business, in nearly perfect health."

Darien, November 1, 1826.

Hartford, Conn. Feb. 20, 1827.

MR. WM. W. POTTER—

Dear Sir: I have now but one bottle of Catholicon left. A person arrived this evening, who came sixty miles since morning, for 17 bottles of Catholicon, and would have taken 24; but I could not let him have but 9. He came expressly for the article, and says that the person, who had used two bottles, has had a "liver affection or consumption" 20 years; and that three of the family are invalids, and have paid in ten years, for medical advice and medicine, $1,500. He says the person who has used the two bottles, never found any medicine to compare with the Catholicon, and that the neighbours, seeing the astonishing effects it produced, a number of them sent the above person to procure the article, for various chronic diseases. The person told me he would wait two days, if he could procure the two dozen. Will you, without fail, send me, or if necessary, even come with a few boxes of the Catholicon to Hartford, as I fear delays will take place in New York and New Haven; and as to being out of the article, I cannot think of it.

I am in haste, yours, &c.

TO SOUTHERN PLANTERS.

The Vegetable Catholicon is peculiarly adapted to those diseases which are prevalent among the coloured population of the South. In that disease which is called Yaws it is a sure remedy; a single trial of it, will convince planters of its superior efficacy to any remedy of a similar nature in the U. States. They should never be without it.

Sold by the principal Druggists and Booksellers in the United States.

Price $5 per bottle, or $30 per dozen.

A Female Veteran.—The Dedham Register states that Mrs. Deborah Gannett, wife of Mr. Benj Gannett, of Sharon, Ms. died on the 19th ult. She enlisted as a volunteer in the American Army of the Revolution, in the Massachusetts Corps, having the dress and appearance of a soldier. She continued in the service until the end of the war, three years, sustaining an unsullied character, and performing the duties of a soldier with more than ordinary alertness and courage, having been twice dangerously wounded, though she preserved her sex undiscovered. At the disbanding of the army she received an honorable discharge, and returned to her relatives in Massachusetts, still in her regimentals. When her case was made known to the government of this state, her full wages were paid, and a considerable bounty added. Congress allowed her a pension which she has regularly received. Soon after she resumed the sphere of her own sex, she was married to Mr. Gannett, an industrious respectable farmer. She has borne and reared him a reputable family of children; and, to the close of life, has merited the character of an amiable wife, a tender mother, a kind and exemplary neighbor, and a friend of her country.

Anecdote of Sir Richard Jebb.—Sir Richard being called to see a patient who fancied himself very ill, told him ingenuously what he thought, and declined prescribing, thinking it unnecessary. "Now you are here," said the patient, "I shall be obliged to you, Sir Richard, if you will tell me how I must live, what I may eat and what not." "My directions as to that point," replied Sir Richard, "will be few and simple. You must not eat the poker, shovel or tongs, for they are hard of digestion; nor the bellows, because they are windy; but any thing else you please."

Purging by Steam.—Under this imposing head, the Macon (Geo.) Telegraph, tells us, a machine has been invented for making Lee's Pills by steam, and by means of which five pecks can be manufactured in a minute.

I once heard a gentleman make a very witty reply to one who asserted that he did not believe there was a truly honest man in the whole world. "Sir," said he, "it is quite impossible that any one man should know all the world, but it is quite possible that some one man may know himself."

The late Dr. Horne, Bishop of Norwich, among his collection of anecdotes has the following:—In one of our universities there were six physicians; of two, their breath was very offensive, one was remarkably slender, two were exceedingly quarrelsome and turbulent, and one was very ignorant of his profession. They were called plague, pestilence and famine, battle, murder, and sudden death.—Mirror.

FOREIGN.

New York, May 16.

ONE DAY LATER FROM ENGLAND.

By the Packet ship Florida, Captain Tinkham, we have received London papers of the 16th, Shipping Lists of the 4th, and Liverpool papers of the 17th of April, inclusive.

The Observer congratulates the country that Mr. Huskisson, and Mr. C. Grant continue in their former offices, and that Mr. Wynn does not resign his Presidency of the Board of Controul. The rumour is still prevalent that Mr. Scarlet will receive an appointment.

THE MINISTRY.

The London Times of the 16th of April says, the arrangements already are, we believe, as follows:—

Sir John Copely to be Lord Chancellor.

Lord Granville, Foreign Secretary.

Mr. Robinson, (with a Peerage) Colonial Secretary.

Mr. Huskisson, Home Secretary, (this not certain.)

Lord Dudley and Ward, Privy Seal.

Lord Carlisle, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland,

Duke of Devonshire, Lord Chamberlain (not certain.)

Marquis of Anglesea, Master of the Ordnance.

The new title of Mr. Robinson, is Lord Strathearn.

Spain.—All the reports in circulation were of a warlike character. At Madrid many labourers were employed in making cartouches, which were despatched to Ciudad Rodrigo. The Marquis of Chaves was about to make a new inroad into Portugal.

The Liverpool Markets, Monday, April 16.

Cotton.—There has been a good demand for cotton throughout the week, and as holders have shewn less inclination to press sales, the market has become stiffer, and in some instances American descriptions have obtained an advance of ½d. per lb. on the previous prices, whilst Brazil and East India are rather lower.

Monday Evening.—The demand for cotton has been very steady on Saturday and to-day, the sales amounting to about 5500 bags, chiefly of the American descriptions, to the trade, at full prices of the former part of the week.

LATEST FROM THE LA PLATA.

Baltimore, May 17.

The ship Moss, Fennell, has arrived in the Delaware, in a passage of 54 days from Monte Video, whence she sailed on the 23d March. Among the passengers is Captain Odam, (late of the schr. Beauty, sold at Buenos Ayres,) who landed at New Castle, and reached this city yesterday morning. To the politeness of Captain O. the editors of the American are indebted for the following interesting information:—Admiral Brown had succeeded in capturing the whole of the Brazilian squadron in the river Uruguay. He then descended with his vessels to Buenos Ayres, and immediately made an attack upon the Brazilian blockading squadron in the outer Roads, which he forced to retire and seek protection from one of the frigates, lying some distance below. A Brazilian brig, of 12 guns, was blown up, and every soul on board perished. The latest dates from Buenos Ayres were to the 15th March, at which time Brown was engaged in fitting out his vessels with the greatest activity, with the intention, it was generally believed, of making an attack on the Brazilian blockading squadron. The general battle which took place in the Province of Rio Grande, in February, between the Buenos Ayrean and Brazilian Armies, resulted in the achievement of a complete victory over the latter. Nine Brazilian standards had been transmitted to Buenos Ayres by General Alvear, as the trophies of his victory; a large number of prisoners were taken, and twelve hundred of the Brazilian army were left dead on the field. In the course of the action, the Buenos Ayrean Cavalry made two ineffectual charges upon the Brazilian Infantry; but being harangued by their commander, an officer of great gallantry, they succeeded at the third charge in penetrating the Imperial line, and decided the fate of the day.

The U. S. Frigate Macedonian, Commodore Biddle, was lying at Monte Video, rendering every possible aid and protection to American commerce. The pettiaugur privateer, commanded by Capt. Beasley, and another small privateer, had each succeeded in capturing and sending into the river Solado, Brazilian property to the amount of $100,000.

We have the Bogota Constitutional of the 22d March. It contains no intelligence of interest.

The editor, in speaking of the recent changes in Peru, holds this language:—

"With respect to the state of Peru, a succession of events has taken place there with such rapidity, the changes have been so complete, so contradictory, and so sudden, that the mind is lost in conjecture, and even those who profess to be best acquainted with the moral and political state of that section of the country, hesitate at present in their calculations, and adduce now as probabilities, what, but a short time back, they confidently announced as facts. With but slender means of information and but little opportunities of encreasing it, we shall not venture any decided opinion on this intricate subject; the intimate connection it has, however, with the state of our country, renders it extremely important and deserving our consideration.

"The sudden overthrow of the Bolivian constitution, so short a time after it had been sworn to, by the cabilde of Lima; the investiture of the President of the council of government, with the supreme authority, the convocation of the Congress to draw up another constitution, and elect the President and Vice President of the Republic, in contempt of the previous election of the Liberator President of Colombia to the exalted office, are a series of events which crowd so fast on one another, are conducted with such order and tranquility, have so

Conspiracy cases.—The Supreme Court this morning delivered their opinion by Judge Woodworth, in the case of Vermilyea, Barker, and others, advs. the People, unanimously granting a new trial.

State Treasury Robbed.—The State Treasury of Ohio was entered on the night of Sunday, the 6th inst. and all the funds then in deposite stolen. The amount is supposed to be from thirteen to fourteen thousand dollars, and consisted of about five thousand of Chillicothe paper of the new plate, of the denomination of ten dollars each—about five thousand of United States' paper, of the denominations of $100, $50, and $20; about two thousand dollars in specie, and the remainder of various kinds.

It must be consoling to the administration folks to know that the election of Mr. Adams is so very certain. By looking over their columns, we find that, with the exception of Tennessee, Mr. A. is to have every State in the Union. We, ourselves, did venture to doubt whether Pennsylvania, Virginia, and two or three of the Southern States would not incline to Jackson; but the Adams papers have dispelled our suspicions. The General, so say the papers, will get but eleven votes in the Union.—Noah.

Young Ladies take care how you JEST with fools.

Some block-headed fellow in Philadelphia, lately brought a suit against a young lady of the first respectability, for a breach of promise of marriage:—But it appeared, on trial, that the promise had been made in jest,—she was "only quizzing the simple fellow!" This appeared manifestly to have been the case, from the disparity in the standing of the parties, and other concurring circumstances: so the jury found in favor of the defendant.

The reader will perceive by the following extract of a letter from Paris, dated the 6th ult. that one of our countrymen is a candidate for an honorary station, vacated by Mr Jefferson's death.—New York Times.

"We have no scientific news of great importance. You may have heard that Mr. Duponceau, of Philadelphia, is a candidate for the place in the Academie Royal des Inscriptions of the Institute, left vacant by the death of Mr. Jefferson. He is highly recommended by several of its members, Tracy, Barbe, Martin and others—but there will be powerful rivals among the English and Germans."

FAYETTEVILLE:

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 24, 1827.

No alteration in cotton since our last.

Robbery.—A trunk was cut from the Camden stage near this town, on Tuesday night last, containing, we understand, checks or drafts to the amount of $18,000, besides other valuable papers and clothing. The trunk, robbed of the checks and clothing, but containing the other papers, was found yesterday morning in a field about a mile from town, by several gentlemen who promptly turned out for that purpose. A young man named Skipper has been taken up and committed to jail under strong circumstancial testimony.

Improvement of the Press.—The last Raleigh Star comes to us considerably enlarged and improved in appearance. It is now the largest paper in the State.

Mr. John Giles has declined standing a poll for Congress in the Salisbury District.

We are informed that Archibald D. Murphy Esq. is a Candidate for Congress in the Orange District, in opposition to Gen. Barringer.—Greensborough Patriot.

The Press.—It must be painful to every friend to the Press and Country, and disgusting to every chaste mind, to behold the entire want of decency and self-respect which many editors of newspapers exhibit in their political and party bickerings. Every day seems to break down some of the barriers of truth and propriety, and the denunciations of political opponents become more and more reckless and rancourous. Female character is attacked; the domestic sanctuary violated; epithets too gross to be applied to a condemned criminal are bandied from one editor to another, and applied to the great and good men of the country. And, astonishing as it is, such newspapers are not only tolerated throughout the country, but apparently most sought after and patronized, and by respectable people too; so as almost to warrant the belief that there is in the human mind either a natural or habitual relish for scandal and scurrility, and that editors find their account in ministering to it. Base perversion of one of the great blessings of a free government! The liberty of the press? It is not the liberty, it is the licenciousness of the press; and unless some bounds be set to it by the powerful force of public opinion, (the only safe corrective,) the time will come, if it have not already, when good men will fear to enter into public life, where the sure reward of all their services, however virtuous and patriotic, is calumny and detraction, not of themselves only, but even of their families.

We do not wonder that men should be vile enough to resort to such means to destroy the character of their opponents or enemies, if they had no ill effects to fear; but it appears to us, that if the opinion of the better part of the world, and their own self-respect, are insufficient to restrain them, a regard for their interest, which must erentually suffer by their loss of the public confidence, should. Every indecency of which the press is guilty, must diminish that confidence; indeed, it has already been denounced, as depraved and unprincipled, even in both Houses of Congress, and the daily remark of those who read the newspapers does not call in question the justice of the denunciation.

If newspapers have any effect at all upon society, (which cannot be doubted,) their conductors have much to answer for. If they cannot reform the public morals, they need not corrupt them; if they cannot eradicate the love of scandal and detraction from the mind of their readers, they can at least refuse to minister to it.

For ourself, we mean to keep our temper during the Presidential contest which is producing so much ill blood among the editorial fraternity. Our partialities are not so warm as to engage us in the general squabble, and to make us lose sight of the respect due to our readers and self.

Gen. Washington's Letters.—It will be recollected it was lately announced that Mr. Jared Sparks, the Editor of the North American Review, had it in contemplation to publish a selection of the letters of Gen. Washington, for which every facility was to be afforded by Judge Washington, in whose hands the manuscripts have remained since the death of the author. By a letter from Mr. Sparks to Judge Story, published in the last National Intelligencer, it appears that Mr. S. has been at Mount Vernon for two months, examining the papers, preparatory to their arrangement for publication. The following extracts give some insight into the nature of the materials which are to form this interesting work, and throw new light upon the character of the great Chief, whose whole life, public and private, and motives for every action, should be known, to enable the world properly to appreciate the greatness of his character.

After mentioning the letters, &c., of the early period of Washington's life, (of which he kept copies, even from the 16th year of his age,) Mr. Sparks says,—

"We are now arrived at the opening scenes of the Revolution, after which, almost every day of Washington's life affords matter for history; and, happily, from that date, the records of the great events in which he bore so conspicuous a part, the testimonials of his acts, opinions, and motives, are numerous, well-preserved, and attested by the sanction of his own hand. Being actuated by a single aim to public good, which left him nothing to conceal, and apparently anticipating the eagerness with which posterity would trace his footsteps, and search into his deeds, his habitual caution to preserve every document that could in any manner help to lay open his conduct to the broad inspection of the world, seemed to increase with the responsibility of his station, and the wider sphere of his duties. There was probably no important public act, either performed by himself, or with his counsel or approbation, for which his motives and purposes may not be easily gathered from some of his papers; and so regardless was he of any discoveries, which the prying eye of curiosity might make in this respect, that he seems to have taken no pains to separate private, from what might be more properly called public papers, any further than circumstances might suggest to him the prudence of such a measure, for a temporary period. In whatever station he was placed by Providence, listening to no other monitor than his conscience, and obeying no other guide than the rectitude of his own heart, he never sought to shield his conduct from the most rigid scrutiny of mankind, nor to withhold or disguise any testimony that might be used in a faithful narrative of his actions. This brilliant gem in the crown of Washington's glory, this stern virtue, and unmingled purity of motive, at the same time it exalts his name above every other that has been called great, communicates to his historical character a reality peculiar to him alone, and stamps the record he has left behind him with indelible marks of truth. As no country has been so fortunate as our own, in the hero that achieved its national existence and greatness, so none could rely with such assurance, on the facts which narrate the story of its early struggles and growing renown.

Washington's Revolutionary Papers have all been transcribed into large folio volumes, amounting to forty-four in number."

"When the Revolution had terminated, and Washington was settled on his farm, although relieved from public duties, his correspondence continued to be very extensive with eminent persons in this country and Europe, and frequently on subjects of much interest and moment. From this period, till the time of accepting the Presidency, his copied letters fill six folio volumes. Scarcely any of them have been printed, and on many accounts they may be considered among the most valuable of his written remains."

"When Washington entered upon the arduous office of the Presidency, he was of course obliged to relinquish a portion of his private correspondence, yet his early formed and long continued habits of industry, procured him leisure from his public duties, and within the years of his Presidential labors are seven volumes of recorded private letters, besides many others of which press copies were taken, and which were not entered in books. A long letter he regularly wrote, once a week, and sometimes oftener, to the manager of his plantation, press copies of which he retained; and he kept up a spirited correspondence on agricultural subjects, with Sir John Sinclair, Arthur Young, Mr. Anderson, and other persons. His European correspondents rather increased than diminished, but his answers became brief and formal. Many, indeed, were turned over to his Secretary. It appears to have been a fixed principle with him, all his life, never to receive a letter of any description, respectful in its language, without replying to it, and commonly with great promptness. The number of letters which came to him from all quarters, on subjects having no relation to his own concerns, would hardly be credited, without occular proof. Letters from persons in distress, asking charity; letters from old soldiers and soldiers' widows, making claims on the Government; letters suggesting projects of improvement; letters innumerable from Europe, desiring information as to the inducements for emigrating to America, and inquiring about lost relatives or friends, supposed to be in this country, or about lands or other property in some of the States; these are but a few of the topics upon which he received almost daily communications. All the World seemed to think, that, if they wished to know any thing concerning America, they had only to write to Washington. In no instance did he treat such applications, obtrusive as they were, with harshness or neglect. In acts of charity, he was open handed, to an extreme; where information was desired, he frequently submitted to a good deal of trouble in collecting it; where claims were presented, over which he had no control, he would put the petitioner into the proper channel for having them examined and adjusted. To all letters of this sort, whether he could return a favorable answer or not, and however humble a rank in life the writer might sustain, he never failed to reply in a condescending and friendly manner."

POETRY.

The following truly poetic lines commence the annual new-year's ode of the Canandaigua Republican, for the year 1826. The author, we understand, died a few years after the date of the address.—Register.

Heard you that knell? It was the knell of Time.
And is Time dead? I thought Time never died:
I knew him old, 'tis true, and full of years,
And bald except in fro: s —but he was strong
As Hercules:—I saw him grasp the oak,
It fell—the tower, it crumbled—and the stone,
The sculptur'd monument, that mark'd the grave
Of fallen greatness, ceased its pompous strain,
As Time came by. Yes, Time was very strong,
And I had thought, too strong for death to grapple.
But I remember now his step was light;
And though he moved at rapid rate, or trod
On adamant, his tread was never heard.
And there was something ghostly in the thought,
That in the silence of the midnight hour,
When all was hush'd as death, and not a sound
Crept o'er my chamber's sill, or awoke
The echo slumbering there,—In such an hour
He trod my chamber; and I heard him not.
And I have held my breath and listen'd close,
To catch one foot-fall as he glided by;
But a slumber'd sound awoke, or sighed.
And the tho't struck me then, that one whose step
Was so much like a spirit's tread, whose acts
Were all so noiseless, like the world unseen,
Would soon be fit for other worlds than this—
Fit for high converse with immortal minds,
Unfetter'd by the flesh; unchained to earth.
Time's movements! oh, how fleet! and yet how still!
Still as the morning sun-beam, as it kiss'd
The blushing flower, but shook not e'en the tears
Of night, the lingering dew-drops, from its leaves,
Nor woke the wild bee slumbering in its folds.

Trust Sale.

BY virtue and in pursuance of a Deed of Trust to us executed by Dr. Wm. H Maffitt, dated 3d March, 1827, and registered in the Register's Office of the county of Cumberland, we shall, upon the 4th day of May next, at the Town House in Fayetteville, proceed to sell the interest which the said William H. Maffitt had, and which is, for certain purposes, to us conveyed, in the following Property,—viz:

The Life Estate of the said William in that parcel or tract of land, known as the Beaver Creek MILLS, situate about five miles from Town, and containing 2300 acres.

Also, his life estate in another Tract, of 179 acres, adjoining the above, with the privilege of cutting Saw Mill Timber on three other tracts, also adjoining, for and during the natural life of the said William.

Also, his life estate in a Tract or parcel of Land, containing 187½ acres, being that tract of land upon which the said William now lives.

Also, the like interest in two other Lots adjoining the last mentioned, the one containing 120½, the other 54½ acres, known by the name of Williams's tract.

Also, his life estate in three Tenements, or Stores, on the north side of Hay street, now in the occupation of C & P. Mallett, Joseph Arey, and C. P. & S. W. Tillinghast, subject, however, to an unexpired lease in the aforesaid tenements, for the term of one year, from the 1st day of Sept'r, 1826.

Also, his interest, being an absolute estate, in a Negro Man named DUBLIN, about thirty years of age; one Wagon and Team, and all the stock and Farming Utensils, on the Sand Hill Plantation, which are too numerous to particularize.

Terms made known on day of sale.

Fayetteville Academy.

THE Committee to whom is confided the care to this Institution, have resolved to let out the buildings to some competent and efficient Teacher, who will take upon himself the entire management of the Academy on his own account.

The buildings are large and commodious, and calculated both for a Male and Female Department.

The Children of the town are numerous:—the local advantages for a flourishing Academy are great, and well calculated to invite pupils from abroad:—and, as there is now no private Grammar School in the place, the present appears to be a favorable time for an individual to embark in the conduct of the Seminary on his own responsibility. It is believed that the profits of the Institution thus managed would reward the undertaker amply for his labor and enterprise.

Any person wishing the situation will apply by letter (post paid) to the Subscriber, without delay.

H. POTTER, Pres't of the Committee.

Fayetteville, Dec. 6, 1826—97-tf

☞ The Committee are desirous to give the use of the Buildings to some person or persons who will keep up a temporary School, until the Academy shall be put upon a permanent footing. Application as above.
